Black ops hypnosis is a type of hidden hypnosis. It's a combination of four different areas of persuasion. The idea of black ops hypnosis is an immediate, but unrecognizable, induction. People are usually unaware that they are being convinced by black ops hypnosis when someone performs it on them. Like any hypnosis, the motivation of black ops hypnosis should not be one of control or malicious manipulation. Field Persuasion Black ops hypnosis is a combination of neuro linguistic programming (NLP), seduction, hypnosis and social engineering. NLP are techniques that work to change the way a person thinks or perceives things. Hypnosis is a method of disabling a person's conscious mind and identifying their sub conscious. It also uses the power of suggestion to influence a person's actions while under hypnosis. Seduction will prepare someone to do something. Social engineering uses psychological manipulation on a person. These four fields combined make up black hypnosis operations. The basic idea The purpose of black hypnosis ops is to convince and influence a person without their knowledge. This is done through a general conversation following some basic guidelines. The idea is to have a person performing hypnosis to conduct a basic conversation with the subject. Through a series of suggestions and careful persuasion they can change people's thoughts or feelings. Most people who have experienced black ops hypnosis have no idea that they have ever been hypnotized. Black OPS hypnosis techniques are something new, but the basic ideas behind it are not. The four areas that make up this type of hypnosis are all well known and used methods. However, in black ops hypnosis these fields are combined to make new techniques that make it possible to hypnotize a person without their knowledge through a general conversation. That's why it's so unique. As with any hypnosis, it is required that a person does not use it to harm others. This type of control and persuasion can be dangerous if the person is not responsible. It's pretty underground right now and that's what was kept secret. However, there are teachers who are willing to share the secret. A person wishing to learn more should try to find one of these teachers or read some of the books that are currently on the market. This is an advanced form of hypnosis though, so a person should really have some basic knowledge about general hypnosis before they start working with black ops hypnosis. The underground Black Ops Hypnosis I've studied the human mind for years, and one striking thing that became painfully obvious to me was that people are essentially puppets waiting to be guided where other people tell them to go... Of course, it is very difficult to accept this fact, but if you are not a leader, you are a follower. That's the way it is. Our minds default to being a follower as it is much easier and The problem is that leaders actually take advantage of many of the benefits Once the hierarchy in the group has been established, it is difficult for the follower to have his own way with things as everyone will listen only to the leader ... This is where hidden hypnosis and underground hypnosis (or black ops) comes in. The only difference is that they use these skills intuitively and in most cases do not know what exactly they are doing. These people have the opportunity to very convincingly present the message they want to get through. They are masters of manipulation... This is what people in the black operative community wanted to achieve in order to bring the most effective methods from several different areas of persuasion and to combine them into the ultimate model for persuasion and influence. After years of research, they succeeded. The system is now fully functional and surprisingly very easy to use. Usually there are a few simple laws that govern human interactions, and if you learn to use them to your advantage, you can achieve some stunning and predictable results... Once you understand the social dynamics and how the human mind works and decision-making, you can very easily get people to do whatever you want. Unfortunately, in a controlled study, it was shown that people, if put in certain conditions (and it is not a war or prison or anything like that!), were able to kill other people simply because they were so instructed. In fact a staggering number of people actually killed other people in this experiment (of course they didn't actually kill them. So this scientific study has concluded that it's actually possible to convince people to do something against their will and even belief if you use certain strategies (no, they weren't conducted at gunpoint. Now, if it is possible to easily convince a person to kill, imagine what else you could do if you knew these secrets. Yes, the possibilities are endless... April 3, 2019 Hypnotherapists receive requests from a variety of people, as well as all sorts of problems and conditions. However, there is one type of query that sets alarm bells ringing at once, and this is when someone is seeking help with a problem that (they offer) involves an element of brainwashing, mind control or black ops hypnosis. This usually takes the form of a person believing that someone they know has been brainwashed through hypnosis rather than concern about yourself (although, you may get those, but they tend to be much rarer). It is also very often centered around an undesirable/unexpected type of behavior that another does that the person (who asks about hypnotherapy) doesn't like. For the sake of simplicity, simplicity, going to use an example of cheating on a partner throughout this blog. Now, there may be many reasons people will cite brainwashing and black ops hypnosis, however it often comes down to 3 things. First, it may be an inability to understand and accept what is happening. So with a tricky example, it may be that a person is concerned that their partner is cheating on them, but they do not recognize that their partner will never do it to them. So, therefore (taking an illogical leap), it must be the external influence that caused it to happen, for example, that the partner had the brains to cheat against his/her will. This suggests a very external locus control, which may include other unhealthy/unrealistic worldviews and ways of responding to different situations. With clients who believe that things are made for them by external forces, and who feel that they have little control over their lives, strengthening the ego can be a useful addition to your overall therapeutic approach to work on rebalancing their locus control. Secondly, it can be an assertive question in which a person asking about hypnotherapy does not want to confront a partner (or third party) about their problems, and it is easier for them to blame external force (such as hypnosis, black magic or even voodoo) than engage in potentially uncomfortable confrontations with the people in question. Again, strengthening the ego can be used alongside hypnotic assertiveness training in order to give the client the resources to be able to engage in difficult conversations so that they can go beyond such issues. It is also worth noting that this lack of assertiveness (as well as other potential causes) can often be combined with other factors like naturally high levels of jealousy or distrust, past experiences of phobic/emotional abuse, and even drug use. This usually means that client requests, which include mentioning black ops hypnosis, black magic, mind control and brainwashing, are likely to be complex cases, and will take a good level of experience for successful work (if you even decide to work with them at all). Finally (and more often than not), these people can often suffer with psychological/psychiatric problems. Extreme paranoia and blame, as well as very external locus control can be an indicator for this, and as you probably know, it is unreasonable to work with clients who suffer from mental disorders through hypnotherapy (if you have specific experience with such clients from a psychiatric point of view, but even then, we would not recommend it). Please keep this point in mind if you are ever in receipt of such a request. These types of hypnotherapy request are actually quite common, so it is important that they be recognized and treated for what they are. As a rule, as The best line of approach is to assume that a person is talking to their partner (or a third party) may be with someone else to act as a mediator for a conversation, or that they seek counseling, psychotherapy or another non-hypnotic form of talk therapy (either alone or with their partner as needed) in order to solve their problems. While standard (non-hypnotic) brain-washing techniques and black OPS techniques can be used to implant desired behavior/thoughts, and can still be used by various clandestine government organizations and even religious or terrorist groups, they will almost certainly not use hypnosis. Why? Well, because it just won't work. It may be worth clarifying to any such investigators that no one can hypnotize the subject to do something against their will and morality, especially when asking them to do something so significant (to go back to example) as taking sex from a new/unknown partner. Tell them that all hypnosis is self-hypnosis, so stage hypnotist can only work with people who volunteer to join the show, and that anyone who does not want to be hypnotized can simply resist and stay out of hypnosis. Let them know that hypnosis is also not black magic or voodoo, and cannot be used to control someone's mind - it is a collaborative process in which both parties (hypnotist and subject) work together to a mutually acceptable goal. This is why clients who are made to come to a hypnotherapy session to quit (their husband/wife) are highly likely to continue smoking because the hypnotherapist is trying to do something against their will, which means that it will not work. In real life (and yes, unfortunately, this can probably still happen), brainwashing is probably achieved through forced mental manipulation (such as sleep deprivation and ongoing terrorization), physical manipulation (such as causing pain, hunger and physical restraint), brainwashing approaches (including ongoing repetition over a long period of time), and (often) the use of mind-altering substances to create a more receptive state. However, it is unlikely that your average Joe (or Jane) have experienced such a thing. If someone genuinely believes that they or the partner were brainwashed, then this would be something that should be reported (by them) to the relevant authorities for further investigation. After all, hypnosis and hypnotherapy cannot be used to brainwash or control people's minds. There is no black ops hypnosis because all hypnosis is self-hypnosis, so using hypnosis for such harmful purposes will not work (both client/subject will not allow it to work). Whenever you are in hypnosis, you are also in control, meaning that you can choose to quit hypnosis whenever you want and ignore any suggestions that you do not want to perform (this is true even of those people hypnotized on stage in a hypnosis show). So if you have a request from someone that believes they (or someone they know) are victims of black ops hypnosis, ops, magic, voodoo or even control of the mind of government, take it with a pinch of salt and pass them on to someone that can deal with them more appropriately.
